The Business Scene in Umingan, Pangasinan

Located in the eastern part of Pangasinan, Umingan serves as one of the province's important agricultural centers and also experiences steady growth in services and small-scale enterprises, making it an emerging economic hub.

Agriculture continues to be the foundation of Umingan's economy, providing livelihood and income for a significant portion of its population. Its fertile farmlands are utilized for the cultivation of 'palay' or rice, corn, and squash, earning Umingan the recognition as a major producer in the region that is further showcased through the annual Kalabasa Festival.

The municipality's business landscape is also supported by small and medium enterprises (SMEs). These enterprises operate across key sectors such as retail, food services, and financial services. Among these institutions is Producers Bank, which provides accessible banking solutions that support local enterprise development and promote financial inclusion.
